The table below provides a range of exhaust dates based on the amount of historical data included in the statistical analysis as measured by the number of monthly observations (column A) through the most recent month. In each case, the monthly rate of change (B) for TFNs in Use is developed using a linear regression and usage is assumed to continue at that rate into the future. The quantity of spares as of the most recent month is divided by the growth rate to determine the estimated months to exhaust (C). The number of months to exhaust is then added to the date of the last monthly measurement to estimate the exhaust date (D).

Starting Date (Number of Observations) (A)	TFNs in Use Monthly Rate of Change (B)	Estimated Months to Exhaust (C)	Estimated Exhaust Date (D)
Jan 2007 (77)	160,294	23	Apr 2015
Jan 2008 (65)	178,244	20	Jan 2015
Jan 2009 (53)	201,338	18	Nov 2014
Jan 2010 (41)	200,794	18	Nov 2014
Jun 2012 (12)	310,890	12	May 2014

NOTE: One-time events, such as the 855 code opening, and large monthly increases and decreases in TFNs in Use are included in the regression analyses without modification or cleansing. Such events may strongly influence some estimates more than others, depending on sample length.
